MOVING GLACIERS RECALL ICE AGE

Snow, Mile Thick, Capped Mountains, Burying Europe and American Continent.

New York.—Warning that icebergs in the Atlantic will be greater next year was brought from the Arctic regions by Capt. Donald B. MacMillan on his return from 14 months of study of glaciers and other phenomena of the Northland. Captain MacMillan made extensive observations of the progress of gigantic glaciers, which Eskimos declared had been moving southward for the first time in their unwritten history.

Captain MacMillan did not make public his scientific records, and these are awaited with great interest by the officers of the United States Coast guard in Washington and by scientists who are seeking further information of the glacial age, when New York was covered with ice, and data proving their contention that there is no immediate danger of Canada and the northern part of the United States again being buried under ice a mile deep.

The coast guard is interested in the news of the advance of the glaciers because it maintains an ice patrol in the North Atlantic ship lane to prevent another Titanic disaster. The gigantic liner was speeding to New York when it struck an iceberg that tore a hole through the ship's steel plates. This fate confronts every vessel that attempts the trip through the fog off the Newfoundland shore where the Labrador current brings down the huge bergs.

Ice Flows to the Sea.
The glaciers seen by Captain MacMillan and his hardy explorers are not immovable cakes of ice. They are gigantic streams of ice moving slower than water, but relentlessly toward the sea. On high mountains and in polar regions at low levels more snow falls than can be melted, and it accumulates from year to year. The snow bank slowly changes by thawing, freezing and pressure into solid ice which drains away down the slope, as water does.

Though Captain MacMillan did not explain why the Arctic glaciers are advancing, scientists here believe their greater progress to the sea is due to increased snowfall which is feeding the ice rivers. The northern glaciers are often more than 1,000 feet thick. When they reach the sea, the ice edge breaks off in large chunks, or icebergs, which drift about until they melt. Some icebergs never leave the northern waters, but many are carried south by the Labrador current until they come in contact with waters warmed by the northward moving Gulf stream. Here they are in the ship lane, a constant menace to navigation.

Ice Age Was Long Ago.
Scientists who have studied glaciers of this day and the traces of those of the past are not alarmed by Captain MacMillan's reports. But only 50,000 or 100,000 years ago North America, north of 40 degrees north latitude, and Europe, north of 50 degrees, were nearly covered by a succession of ice sheets. Existing ice sheets vary from 20 miles in diameter in Iceland to those of Greenland and Antarctica, where an area larger than the United States is completely buried.

In America in the glacial age, the snow and ice accumulated on the Cordilleras of Canada and around Hudson bay, and extended south to the Columbia, Missouri and Ohio rivers. Near the centers of accumulation the ice was perhaps two miles thick. Moving outward it swept away the mantle rock, wore down the bed-rock and left a country of shallow basins and low, rounded hills.

Ice Cooled Atmosphere.
Prof. Ralph S. Tarr of Cornell university, in his book, "The Physical Geography of New York State" explains the advance of the early glaciers as follows:

"As the ice gradually moved southward, involving states at present temperate in climate, and before the glacial period, even warmer than now, there must have been a refrigeration of climate, partly due to the presence of the ice and partly to the causes upon which the formation of the great continental glacier depended. At first, upon the high mountains, the winter snows must have lasted longer and longer into the summer, until the protected valleys held some of the snow throughout the season.

"At this time valley-glaciers, somewhat like those of the Alps, probably appeared in the Adirondacks and Catskills, growing larger as time passed and finally adding their supply to that of the great glacier from the north. This rose higher and higher upon the mountainside until finally the highest peaks of the Adirondacks and Catskills were submerged in the on-moving flood of ice and all of New York state, with the exception of a small tract in the extreme western part, was transformed to a great ice plateau like that of Greenland today.

"From Labrador to Pennsylvania no land appeared above the ice covering, whose depth was certainly greater than a mile in some places. At present no similar ice sheet exists, unless, possibly, the one in the south polar regions, about which almost nothing is known.

Plants Were Frozen Out.
"With the advance of the ice, plants were exterminated and animals either exterminated or driven to the southward. For a long time these conditions lasted, though how long no one can say; and year by year the ice advanced through the valleys and over the hills and even over the mountain tops. At first it swept off the soil and loose rock fragments, dragging them southward and grinding them finer by rubbing particle against particle or against the rocks over which the glacier was slowly gliding.

"Valleys were deepened somewhat and hills scooped by this great force of erosion, the hills losing some of their height and being rounded. The pebbles that the ice held and the bed-rock over which they were dragged were grooved, scratched and polished; and at all times during the stay of the ice the glacier contained in its mass a load of rock fragments varying in size from boulders to clay particles, all slowly journeying southward with the ice and being ground as they went."

Long Island Was Glacial.
Long Island is believed to have been then much like the places studied by Captain MacMillan in the Arctic. There the front of the glacier is believed to have reached the sea and it broke off to form numerous icebergs.

In time the conditions which gave rise to the glacial period—the same, scientists believe, which cause the present advance of the Arctic ice—began to change, and the ice front slowly melted back, uncovering New York and the rest of the country over which it had advanced. In some places the ice halted long enough to build up hills of debris, moraines, picked up in its advance from the north. After having passed down into Pennsylvania, the ice halted for a long time in central and western New York. The deposits from the glacier form the characteristic soil of the state, particularly of the hillsides and hilltops.

"With the withdrawal of the ice the conditions were again made favorable for the existence of animal and plant life upon the surface," reads Professor Tarr's book. "Foot by foot the country was relieved of its ice blanket and slowly the soil left by the glacier began to be made to nourish plant life and to furnish a dwelling place for animals. At first, skirting the ice front, there must have been strips of land entirely without vegetation.

"Then came the light seeded grasses and small plants and then the forests. During this bare condition of the soil the rain fell, and gathering into mud-laden hills washed much of the imported soil away, as it now does on the roads and ploughed fields; and this sediment was added to the stratified drift from the glacier.

Rain Made Torrents.
"There is good reason to believe that the rains were perhaps heavier then than now, for the presence of the ice to chill the moisture-laden winds from the south, and the large amount of vapor that would be produced from the floods of the glacier-supplied waters would bring about conditions favoring heavier rain.

"At this time, also, in places where the slope was sufficient for the removal of the sediment, the streams must have had more power to cut than now; and probably much of the gorge cutting in central New York was accomplished during this time, when there was apparently more water and when the water that fell upon the surface certainly flowed away more quickly in the form of floods than it did later when its runoff was retarded by the forests. Also, at this time the streams had more sediment to serve as cutting tools than later when the soil was held in place by the roots of the forest trees.

"What happened among the mountains during the advance of the glacier probably also happened during its withdrawal, though in reverse order. In Greenland the last stage of glacial retreat upon land from which the glacier has just withdrawn is that of local valley glaciers. The same was true in New Hampshire and Maine, and no doubt, when studies of the Adirondacks have been made, evidence of local valley glaciation will be found there in many places."

Claim Better Kitchens Extend Women's Lives

Columbus, Ohio.—Long life for housewives and remodeled kitchens go pretty much together, home economists specialists at Ohio State university feel.

Not all kitchens need remodeling, of course, but most of them do. With that in mind, Geneva M. Bane, specialist in house management of the state university, and H. P. Switchell, agricultural engineer, have prepared a bulletin called "Just Kitchens."

"The kitchen is the farm woman's workshop, the place where she spends about 70 per cent of her working days. This time can often be reduced if the kitchen is carefully planned," the bulletin says.

A good kitchen is one in which the worker can reach all equipment with little walking. This means compact grouping to eliminate waste."

African Natives to Lose Wives; Can't Pay for Them

London.—Many natives of Pondoland, South Africa, are likely to lose wives purchased on extended credit during the last three years, because they claim to be unable to complete their payments. The purchase of wives on credit is not usually allowed among the natives, as there is too much inclination to return the wives in lieu of the purchase price, but a matrimonial moratorium has been in effect during the period of mourning for the death of a paramount chief. This period is now over, and natives who obtained wives on credit must pay up or return the women to their parental kraals.

The world dances to Victrola because Victor dance records are latest and best

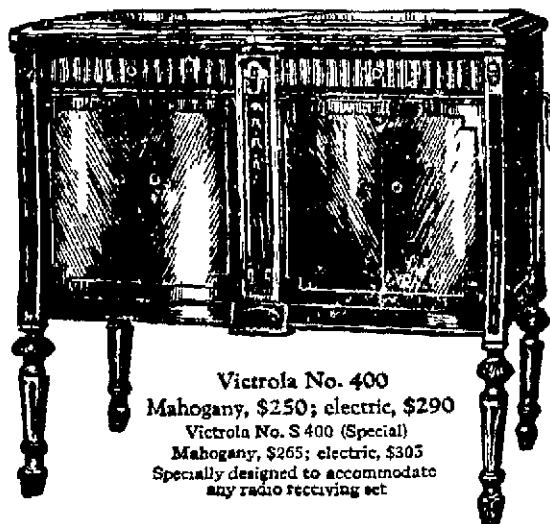

Today the dance music enthusiast goes from the favorite dance floor to the Victrola at home and enjoys the same up-to-the-minute music in either place. The dispatch with which Victor Records of the latest dance hits are issued makes this possible and accounts for the preference given them by those who know big dance orchestras as a matter of course and recognize unusual dance music when they hear it. If it isn't on a Victor Record it isn't a big hit.

(Romance (d'Amboise) Violin Solo Renée Chemet

In the hands of a great artist the violin is the veritable servant of beauty—and how Chemet makes it speak! Both numbers are slow and of highly emotional character.

(Memory Lane (de Sylva-Spice-Corcoran) Amelia Galli-Curci 1047 1.50 (Mah Lindy Lou (Lily Stuckland) Amelia Galli-Curci

The tender "Memory Lane" with its swinging waltz rhythm; and the quaint "Lindy Lou" in American Negro dialect, with a bright celesta and a banjo-like accompaniment which give an unusual background to the lovely voice.

(Goin' Home (Words by William Arms Fisher) Reinald Werrenrath 6472 2.00 (Follow Me (Fields-Gay-R. Nathaniel Doss) Reinald Werrenrath

"Spirituals" of modern derivation—the first based on the slow movement from Dvořák's "New World Symphony"; the other, highly dramatic in style, by a prominent American Negro composer.

Melodious Instrumental

(Coppelia Ballet—Entr'acte and Waltz Victor Symphony 19435 .75 (Naila Ballet—Intermezzo Orchestra

Waltzes from Leo Delibes' great ballets—immortal masterpieces of music written for the dance. Both have delicate, gossamer-like melody with a smooth pour of counter-melody underneath.

Light Vocal Selections

(Tea for Two (from "No, No, Nanette") Helen Clark- 19463 .75
(I Want to Be Happy (from "No, No, Nanette") Lewis James

Tuneful numbers which are big duet successes. The first in its original form for the voices and orchestra; the second with some interesting orchestral effects.

(Bring Back Those Rock-A-Bye Baby Days Georgie Price 19465 .75
(My Best Girl Georgie Price

Fox trot songs by this famous comedian, with orchestral accompaniments which make them as agreeable to dance as to listen to.

Recitations

(Proud Father and Dirty Hands Edgar Guest 45454 1.00
(The Man to Be and Compensation Edgar Guest

Simple and familiar rhymes of American domestic life. The poet, perhaps the most prominent figure in the American literature of today, "speaks his own pieces."

Dance Records

(Rose-Marie—Fox Trot (from "Rose-Marie") Paul Whiteman and 19461 .75
(My Road—Fox Trot (from "Be Yourself") His Orchestra

Two tempting fox trots, done in Whiteman's brightest, snappiest and latest style; new, different effects, but the familiar perfection of time and rhythm.

(Sweet Little You—Fox Trot Henry Halstead and His Orch. 19406 .75
(If I Stay Away Too Long from Carolina Art Hickman's Orchestra

Fox trots from Pacific Coast organizations of immeasurably more than coast repute. The first soft-toned with brisk tempo; the second in moderate tempo with strongly marked rhythms.

(Go Your Way and I'll Go Mine—Fox Trot Glenn Oswald's 19410 .75
(Oh Peter—Fox Trot Serenaders

These records adapt themselves perfectly to the "Collegegate" and similar dances, but may be used always for the standard fox trot.

By Charles A. Harnett
Motor Vehicle Commissioner.

RULES OF THE ROAD.

Q.—What duty is imposed upon a person operating or driving a motor vehicle when meeting a horse or other draft animals on the public highways?

A.—The operator or driver shall reasonably turn the motor vehicle to the right of the center of the highway so as to pass without interference. If the person, riding, leading or driving such animals signals by raising his hand, the operator or driver of the motor vehicle shall bring it immediately to a stop and remain stationary so long as may be reasonable to allow such horse or animal to pass. In case such horse or animal appears badly frightened or if the operator or driver of the motor vehicle signalled so to do, the operator or driver shall cause the engine of the motor vehicle to cease running so long as shall be reasonably necessary to prevent accident and insure the safety of others.

Q.—What duty is imposed upon the operator or driver of a motor vehicle when overtaking a horse or other draft animal, or other vehicles on the public highways?

A.—He shall pass on the left side thereof.

Q.—What duty is imposed upon the driver of a horse, draft animal or vehicle when approached by a motor vehicle going in the same direction?

A.—The rider or driver of such horse, draft animal or other vehicle shall turn to the right so as to allow free passage on the left.

Q.—What course shall a motor vehicle take at the intersection of public highways when it is turned to the right or left?

A.—To the right of such intersection.

THE CLOVE.

The Clove, Oct. 30.—A number of wells and cisterns in this place are very low and much in need of rain.

DeWitt DuBois and daughter enjoyed a trip to Mettacasahonts Sunday morning.

As usual, quite a number motored to Kingston Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rhinehart and family motored to Ossining recently to visit relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. William Sheeley, son Fred, and wife, motored to Lake Katrine Sunday and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Sheeley.

Mr. and Mrs. John K. DePuy entertained the following company Sunday: Robert Sanford, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Yeaple and daughter, Mrs. Edna C. Ayres, and in the evening the Rev. Thomas S. Braithwaite.

There was an attendance of twenty at the Reformed services Sunday evening. The Rev. Mr. Braithwaite gave a very fine sermon.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Malden of New Jersey visited her sister, Mrs. C. E. Rhinehart, last week.

Malden before marriage was Miss Vera Stephens, formerly of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith are employed at Lake Mohonk.

Mrs. Rachel Ann Booth returned to the city Monday for the winter after spending a few weeks at her home here.

Mrs. Arnold Van Laer, teacher, will give a Halloween party for the scholars at her home here Friday evening, which is much appreciated by both scholars and parents. Much credit is due Mrs. Van Laer for her trouble in giving the children a good time during the school term.

Miss Elsie Roat, school superintendent, visited the school one day the past week.

Chic Navy Fall Frock

With Collar and Cuffs

Navy charmeuse is used for this fall frock which is made in one-piece, colored and cuffed in white. Hat is of white beaver and black velvet.

Select Becoming Colors

When Buying Garments

In meeting new colors, there are also certain principles which can guide you in determining whether or not they will be becoming to you, says the Kansas City Star. The principle of the pleasing contrast to your hair, eyes, and complexion is one test. The knowledge of the effect which certain colors will have on your complexion is another test.

The second test requires a more intimate knowledge of color and the effects which certain colors have upon one another. It has been stated that violet brings out the yellowish tone in a pale complexion. Now why is this so?

The reason has to do with the physical composition of our eyes. One does not need to know the facts, but can readily convince oneself of the truth by dropping a spot of purple ink upon a piece of white paper, and viewing it steadily for a few moments; gradually a yellowish ring will form around the purple spot.

There are a few other simple experiments which you can make which will show you the effect of red, blue, and green tones upon your complexion. Red reflects a rosy tint upon the complexion. If you stand in the shadow of a red surface, you will note the reddish shadow cast upon your skin and clothing. That's why a soft red is a friendly color for a pale complexion.

Green brings out red in the skin, and therefore is a bad color for people with a vivid complexion, but a good color for a pale person, for it brings color in her face.

Brilliant blue is apt to bring out an orange or yellowish cast in your skin. One who is pale will find this an unfriendly color and should avoid it. It is apt to make such a person appear paler and more sallow.

Just a word of warning about the so-called "fashionable shades." Remember, that just because a color in itself is beautiful does not mean that it will be becoming to you. In selecting your most becoming colors, "Know thyself"—consider the shade of your hair, color of your eyes and tone of your skin. The right colors on the right type.

Scarf for Neckwear Is

One of Season's Modes

Scarves are the last word in neckwear this season. They are of every conceivable color and fabric and woven in every sort of way, one rule connected with their correct adjustment being, however, that when worn with a coat, only the scarf and none of the blouse should show. Sometimes the scarf is worn around the neck, with both ends thrown over the shoulder. Fringe and tassels trim the ends of scarves and feather scarves are the latest predilection of Paris. Ostrich boas, long ones, either round or flat, are also sponsored by Paris.

Chiffons, georgettes, crepe de chine, flat crepes and heavier silks are used for scarves, appearing in all the new high colors, with contrasting ends and in very gayly-patterned materials.

Worn-Out Crash Towels

Used for Wash Cloths

If crash towels wear out in the middle, use the ends for wash cloths, finishing the edges with a buttonhole stitching or narrow, crocheted scallops. Ravages of moths on men's clothing, today, are corrected by shops that take matching pieces of the material, ravel them and weave in the spots so that they are scarcely discernible and the suit need not be discarded. Home mending, even the finest, can hardly compete with this new method, which is not unduly expensive, considering the work.

Where They Make Violins.
Cremona is the name of an Italian village where many famous violin-makers worked. Among them were Stradivarius, Guarnerius, Amati and Bergoni. The violins made by all of them are called Cremonas.

Choose Veil of Color and Weave That Suits

Do you select your veil with a view to covering "a multitude of sins," or do you regard it only as a becoming "finishing touch" to your costume?

While it is true that a veil does minimize certain defects, it is not a mask or a disguise. And it should not only hide imperfections, but heighten charms, says a correspondent in the Kansas City Star.

Ask yourself these questions as you adjust your veil: Does it enhance the beauty of my hat? Does it give my toilet a more complete appearance? Does it protect my face?

Let your veil be of a color and weave that you know suit you; and never let it be straggly. The blue veil is perhaps the most becoming of all. It has the effect of clarifying the skin and heightening the color, and, if the eyes happen to be blue, it increases their color and brilliancy.

The face veil solely of white is the one most to be avoided, as it is unbecoming except to very youthful women, or those who have very clear, highly-colored complexions.

A woman with small features should, ordinarily, wear a veil with a light pattern. A heavier pattern may suit the larger woman. Similarly, a small, close-fitting hat usually requires a single-mesh veil; but where the veil is farther away from the face, as on the large hat, the larger-patterned veil is smart and becoming.

The most satisfactory sort of veil for everyday use is the heavier, twilled, linen-mesh one, say, in brown, or in white with black dots. These veils are becoming to nearly every one, and they wash and wear well.

If you want a really fine, filmy veil, however, get a real silk mesh. For if you buy the cheap imitations in stiffened cotton, the sticky dressing on them soon comes off, and the veil easily crumples and tears.

Having selected your veil, learn to take care of it. Do not leave it on your hat for days at a time. Remove it when you take off your hat, stretch out the width and roll it up. You may wash your twilled linen or cotton veils.

Shoes for Outdoor Wear Must Be of Right Kind

The most important item of the outdoor costume is footwear and it is not easy to achieve a happy combination of ease and style without sacrificing a little of each. Feet that are cramped or damp must be carefully avoided, and shoes that resemble ten-league boots are equally out of the picture. The secret of graceful boots which are at the same time comfortable and waterproof lies in the type of leather employed. Oil-tanned leathers are equal to this exigency and it is important to remember that shoes of this sort should never be dried over a fire as this leather burns very easily. Chrome-tanned leather is also satisfactory—it is soft and pliable, and after it is dried does not become brittle or cracky.

The size of the hiking or tramping shoe is of utmost importance. Remember that heavy woolen hosiery is essential to foot comfort in heavy shoes, and that it is customary to order shoes of this character at least two sizes larger than the normal measurements. All shoes are high and all heels are low. Of course, there is a definite sacrifice of smartness in this arrangement but it is obvious that even the trimmest ankle could not march far in a high-heeled slipper.

Featuring One Color

Some of the smart New York shops are featuring one color. Thus, the faintest hermost yellow is seen in children's frocks for evening wear. The deeper shades of yellow are used for afternoon costumes and wraps, while the most vivid yellows are reserved for sports clothes.

Got Mild Intoxicant From "Peyote" Plant

"Peyote" (pronounced "pay-to-tay," with accent on second syllable) is the Mexican form of the Aztec "peyotl," meaning a caterpillar. The Aztecs applied "peyotl" to a species of composite plants in southern Mexico because of the downy growth on the roots. A mild intoxicant was made by the Indians from this plant. Later "peyote" came to be applied to a small spineless cactus which grows in northern Mexico and the southwestern part of the United States. This cactus is found in abundance along the Rio Grande.

The small tops which barely protrude above the ground are often called "mesquite buttons." From the dried tops is made a medicine used as a remedy for various ailments. But the chief use of peyote is in certain religious ceremonies. It exhilarates the mind, intensifies the imagination, and produces a pleasant dreaminess, without, however, any disagreeable effects later. At least this is what the authorities report.

The peyote is taken at intervals during the ceremonies, which last throughout the night. Originally all the red men in that region chewed mesquite.

In recent years the peyote religion has spread among the Indians in Oklahoma and farther north. Some tribes look upon the plant as of divine origin and treat it with veneration. There is no English name which we know of for peyote.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Mementoes of Ancient Carthage in England

The ruined temple at Virginia Water, Surrey, England, is always somewhat of a mystery to visitors to that beauty spot which was at one time a dreary swamp. Standing in a romantic glen, its columns look as though they had been undisturbed for 2,000 years. The fact is that the temple has been in its present position about a century. Its original site was ancient Carthage. On several of the stones are inscriptions. One, in Greek, on an altar stone, tells how Publius Aurelius dedicated it to Jupiter and to the other gods worshiped in the temple. Others are written in Latin. One of these reads: "Marcus Julius erected this to his most beloved wife Domitia Rogata, who lived twenty-three years."

At one time a fine group of ancient Greek statuary stood near these columns from Carthage. When William IV opened these lovely grounds to the public, however, these statues were so shamefully mutilated by visitors that they were completely ruined, and the public were again excluded until the reign of Queen Victoria.

Go-as-You-Please Spelling

We sometimes fancy that strictly correct spelling has been turned into a fetish. Spelling is largely a knack after the first fearful steps have been taken up the slopes of our English Parnassus. The letters come by a sort of instinct. They dance merrily into the right order of themselves. If some good people never can spell with pedantic accuracy, does it matter so very much? "Oh she knew well. Thy love did read by rote and could not spell." To be an immaculate speller is like being a copper-plate calligraphist. But it remains one of the minor accomplishments at best. Some of the best letters have been ill-spelled. It is the matter that counts.—London Telegraph.

RIGHTS OF PEDESTRIANS.

There is record of European laws, in the interests of the wealthy and powerful, which required payment of fines by persons who were guilty of being knocked down or run over by carriages in the streets. There is suggestion of a somewhat similar spirit in the announced determination of Police Commissioner Enright, of New York, to arrest pedestrians, fine them in court, or commit them to prison, whenever they fail to obey the regulation requiring them to pass from one side of a street to the other only at crossings. "The regulation," he says, "will be enforced by all the means at our command," and declares further that "the streets and sidewalks of New York must be reclaimed for business and the decent traveling public." They ought to be "reclaimed" for pedestrians, one is apt to think as one stands at Broadway and Times Square and sees the interminable stream of automobiles, six or eight abreast, and the crowds of people waiting, waiting even for a brief chance to get over at the crossings themselves. Small wonder that occasionally desperate persons take their lives in their hands and run dodging and zigzagging across elsewhere.

One gets the impression that the rights still left to pedestrians are limited indeed. In the more crowded districts Commissioner Enright would not even leave them the right to loiter and look into shop windows. The New York Times asks him if some better way can not be found to "restrain jay-walking," points out that already the police have authority to disperse crowds, shows that it is not unsafe to cross at the middle of the block except in the congested regions, recalls the fact that many of the run-down are school children, and sarcastically quotes a policeman: "If there are many more pedestrians there won't be room for the automobiles."

CONFIDENCE NOT MISPLACED.

If there be anyone who doubts the place Theodore Roosevelt has in the hearts of the people he has only to attend three or four meetings addressed by the Republican candidate for Governor. Those attending the Roosevelt meetings are, to a large extent, persons who normally take little interest in campaigns. They are there because of their interest in the candidate and because they want to see him, talk to him and shake hands with him if they get a chance.

Regular Republicans are visible in all of his audiences and their enthusiasm is evident, but there is another element which may be found in the halls and in the throngs struggling to get through the doors. It is representative of all walks of life and of all activities. It is made up of men, women and children, whose faces prove intense interest and who show their faith and their hope in Roosevelt.

Republican leaders in all parts of the State are highly elated. When a meeting has been arranged for a theater and throngs caused hurried-up arrangements for three or four additional meetings, those in charge have realized that the support is not caused just by red fire or campaign banners.

There is another point in this connection. To those who look over the crowds there is every evidence that it represents enthusiasm. There are the man and his wife and children, and it has been talked over and the plans made for seeing "Teddy." It all shows the candidate has the confidence of the electorate and a place in the great American home circle. He has been discussed and not found wanting. He measures up to the requirements, and in his pledge which he makes nightly he declares that the future will show that this confidence and support have not been misplaced.

When the orchestra played "Deutschland Ueber Alles" at a New York theater in honor of Commander Eckener, who brought over the ZR-3, many persons in the audience rose and then Dr. Eckener in a speech in German expressed surprise at the warmth of the affection of an American audience for him and his country. Perhaps such "warmth of affection" was not universal even in that self-picked audience and certainly it is not in the country in general. The American public, sometimes described as "mercurial," is pretty quick to forget, but there is still recollection of bomb-dropping Zeppelins, Lusitania-torpedoing and much more, and, though courtesy should be shown the Eckener party, such exhibitions as that staged at the New York theater can hardly be called tactful and their omission would be in better taste as well as more prudent.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

ART AND NECESSITY.

When you look at the beautiful statuary illustrative of Greek art you are immediately struck by the superb physique of the men and women of those wonderful days in Greek history.

The human body was to them really a temple, a fitting habitation for the soul.

The development of the body went hand in hand with the development of the soul.

The winner of the Marathon race, or of a wrestling tournament, was accorded the same honor as that of a successful general, or a wonderful orator.

That the days will come back to Greece, or any other nation, where the development of the body will take such a high place, is something about which one cannot even speculate.

That groups of boys and girls, men and women, all the people of any nation, or all nations, will engage in play, in constructive exercise, is in our present state of mind, not a likely thing to happen. Now these ancient Greeks developed the body as a work of art. To them the body was a beautiful thing, which developed to its full possibilities, was worthy of actual worship.

Now what about this in our present day?

We have many men and women who have given thought and time to their bodies, and they have achieved a perfection, equal to that attained by the men and women of Greece. It has meant time and effort, but not enough to interfere with their other affairs in life.

They are in the minority, and may always be few in number.

However, when man does not do things for the sake of art, sometimes Nature makes him do from necessity.

What do I mean?

That civilized man has come to realize that he has the same body as his forefathers of thousands of years ago, when the outdoor life of hunting and fishing, and later tilling the ground, was his everyday work. This very work kept his body strong and free from illness. And so the ball games, tennis, golf, group games of all kinds, have come into his every day life.

They are thought to be for his mental relaxation, for recreation, and that is true enough.

But the actual physical exertion is making his body function as it was intended to function.

Now what about you?

If your work is not muscular, you simply have to indulge in some muscular exercise such as play, or else some regular systematic exercise at home. It isn't a matter of beauty or art. It is a matter of necessity, and you know it.

New Type of Car Stirs Automobile World

It is an open car one moment and 30 seconds later same car is entirely enclosed. Studebaker Duplex ends need of hunting for side curtains in the dark and storm

A new type of car has stirred the automobile world as has nothing since the abandonment of the "buggy" style of body building.

It is the Studebaker Duplex, so called to indicate that it is an open car one moment, and 30 seconds later it is an enclosed car.

Like all great advances in the industrial arts, it is "so simple in operation, it is a wonder it wasn't thought of before" — — —

Particularly since its need has been growing, year by year, ever since automobiles were made.

Many people all of the time, and most people part of the time, want an open car—to bring to their riding the fresh crispness of the country air, and a free and untrammelled association with the great outdoors.

Yet for these same people, the snug comfort of the closed car, shutting out the storm and the wind and the cold, has been at times a necessity.

Two cars in one

The Studebaker Duplex is both cars in one. Just pull down the roller enclosures concealed in the roof of the car. In 30 seconds the open car has been made an enclosed car.

No hurried efforts to put up curtains; no hunting for the right one while the storm beats in; no mixing them up in the dark; no exposure through holes torn in them while trying to obtain, for the emergency, the protection given by a closed car — — —

Just pull down the roller enclosures giving instant enclosed car effect.

The body is built substantially—sides, corners and roof frame are of steel. The roof has curved steel sides and back; hardwood front. Steel, U-shaped cross beams, six of them, support the waterproofed, duplex fabric top and its linings. Here is permanent beauty, no sagging tops.

But Studebaker, on which the whole vehicle-using world has come to depend for reliability, would not rest on only one real contribution to the value given the public.

It must give all that engineering ability could devise.

Striking new features

So there are offered three distinct models of cars, to meet each of the three fields of demand—the Standard Six, with 113-inch wheelbase and 50 horsepower motor; the Special Six, with 120-inch wheelbase and 65 horsepower motor; the Big Six, most magnificent and luxurious of its products, with 127-inch wheelbase and 75 horsepower motor.

Duplex bodies are available on each line. In addition, closed models have workmanship and materials and beauty of line so far above the price class of the car, they must be seen to be appreciated.

Of scarcely less importance than the Duplex feature are other improvements such as, automatic ignition system, lighting control on the steering wheel, new location of emergency brake, improved one-piece windshield and many others.

The body lines, steering mechanism, and even the fenders of the new Studebaker were designed especially for genuine balloon tires. Thus the body lines harmonize with grace and beauty hitherto unattained, even by Studebaker.

Come in and see these new cars.

Girl Reserves Enjoy Hallowe'en

More than two hundred grade school Girl Reserves and their friends enjoyed a Hallowe'en party last evening in the Y. W. C. A. gymnasium from 6:30 to 8:30 o'clock.

The hall was most attractively decorated with orange and black crepe paper and cornstalks, with bats, black cats, and jack-o-lanterns to lend the proper weird atmosphere. All who attended were in fancy costumes.

The program was in charge of the physical director, Miss Redman, and included a grand march, a "terrible ghost story," relay races, and stunts. Refreshments were brought by the girls and were appropriate to the season being fruit punch, doughnuts, and apples. The evening's entertainment concluded with dancing and all voted the affair a huge success.

The senior department girls will hold their party on Friday evening of this week at 8 o'clock and all senior members are cordially invited to attend.

MISSIONARY TO SPEAK AT FIRST REFORMED CHURCH

On Friday afternoon from 3 until 4 o'clock, the Women's Missionary Society of the First Reformed Church will hold a tea in the chapel, to which all ladies of the Fair Street Church and the Church of the Comforter are invited as well as all others who wish to participate in this delightful occasion. Miss Mathilde Berg, a young missionary, lately returned from India, will tell of the conditions found there, as well as the great service performed by Christian missionaries. A business session at 2:45 will precede the regular meeting.

Simple Inclosed Crystal Detector

Best Results Obtained When Important Attachment Is Shielded.

By HARRY R. LUBCKE

The advantages of an inclosed crystal detector are apparent. Since a crystal is a rather "temperamental beast," it is desirable to shield it, as far as possible, from detrimental external influences. However, with the conventional model, if any dust is present within the inclosure it will settle to the bottom and on the crystal. This disadvantage is obliterated in the type shown in Figure 1. With this inclosed mounting, as we may call it, the crystal is the farthest away from any foreign material. After it is once made it is impossible even to touch it with the fingers, while the unit as a whole is easily handled.

It will be noticed that the major portions of the detector are made from electric fittings. There are two main parts, the plug, which holds the crystal, and the socket, which supports the cat's whisker. Adjustment is secured by screwing the plug up or down. The plug is made from the base of an ordinary electric light. A burned-out lamp is secured, the glass broken and the base cleaned out of all wire and cement. The little brass washer on the bottom is removed and the black, glasslike insulation is carefully drilled with a one-eighth inch drill.

If a lathe is available this can easily be done. Place the plug in the tail stock and drill slowly, using the highest speed. It is through this hole that the cat's whisker passes so that it touches the crystal. (See Figure 1.) Using the Can Cover.

A can cover is next procured and filled with enough low melting alloy, type metal or solder, so that when it is melted it will form a layer three-eighths of an inch thick. A piece of galena or other sensitive mineral is floated on the liquid and the lamp base pushed in over it. Allow it to cool. Then break away all the surplus metal on the outside. In this way the crystal is mounted and the top seated in one operation, making the finished unit look like the plug in Figure 1.

A suitable socket is next procured. For panel sets a small, flush mounting plateless one is the best because it takes up very little room. This can be easily mounted on the panel, all connections being made on the back, while the crystal unit extends out in front for easy adjustment. For table mounted sets the type shown in the first figure is the most satisfactory, as it can be fastened to the base with screws by using the holes regularly provided for the purpose. In either case the cat's whisker is soldered to the center terminal as shown. Silver or gold wire of about No. 30 B. & S. gauge should be used. Suitable silver wire can be obtained for little or no cost from a discarded G string of a violin. This is wound with silver wire, one string furnishing enough for a great number of detectors.

Length of Cat's Whisker. The cat's whisker should be of such length that when it comes in contact with the crystal the plug is one or two turns from the bottom. This leaves the top of the plug out so it can be turned for adjustment. If desired a knob can be put on the crystal unit by drilling a hole in the alloy, threading with 8-32 thread and screwing in a piece of threaded rod three-eighths of an inch long. A flat bake lite or hard rubber knob with a threaded bushing is screwed on.

The connections to the rest of the circuit are made at the regular connectors on the socket. With iron pyrites or silicon as a mineral it is well adapted to reflex circuits. After once being adjusted it requires little attention, eliminating fussy adjustments.

It is recommended that several crystal units be made. In this way if one crystal becomes exhausted it is only the work of a minute to replace it with a fresh one. By using different minerals in the various plugs interesting experiments can be carried out testing the sensitivity and stability of the many crystals and compounds that are offered to the radio public.—New York Sun.

SHORT CIRCUITS

Dry batteries will have a greater life if they are kept in an upright position.

Often the quality of reproduction from a loud speaker can be improved by reversing wires at the terminals. Adding more A batteries to your dry cell tube will not give you any louder signals. On the other hand it is far more apt to burn out the tube. Every box containing a vacuum tube has a printed sheet giving exact data on connection and A and B battery voltages. It is best to follow these exactly.

MRS. T. G. KELLY, (Below) T. G. KELLY and MEREDITH WATERBURY.

T. G. Kelly, pioneer business man of San Bernardino, Cal., was found dead, his wife delirious and their little niece, Meredith Waterbury, of Los Angeles, nearly unconscious, when the curtain of mystery that shrouded their disappearance in the San Bernardino Mountains was raised. Their automobile had backed over a 500-foot cliff near Black Flat and deep foliage hid the wreckage from searchers. Mrs. Kelly, who was holding her niece when the latter was a baby, had saved the child's life by opening her own veins five times to give her life blood to the child to drink.

MEN AND WOMEN IN NEWS SPOTLIGHT

Below: LOUIS K. RITTENHOUSE & RICHARD LOEB.

Louis K. Rittenhouse, wealthy manufacturer, of Orange, N. J., was shot to death by two men as he stepped from his home there to mail a letter. Richard Loeb, one of the slayers of "Bobby" Franks, of Chicago, was not permitted to leave the Joliet, Ill. State Prison, where he is doing a life term, to attend the funeral of his father, Albert Loeb, multi-millionaire vice-president of Sears Roebuck & Co., of Chicago. In addition to the $125,000 legacy bequeathed her by her husband, Mrs. Oscar Lewisohn, the former Edna May of stage fame, also received the income of a $475,000 trust fund established for her. Italy's black-shirted Fascist army has again sworn its allegiance to King Victor Emmanuel, of Italy, in Rome.

State Federation Of Home Bureaus

Fifth Annual Meeting to be Held at Syracuse Next Week—Interesting Discussions and Prominent Speakers.

The New York State Federation of Home Bureaus will hold its fifth annual meeting November 5, 6 and 7, at the Onondaga Hotel, Syracuse. On Wednesday at 10 a. m. the sessions will open, presided over by Mrs. G. Thomas Powell of Glen Head, L. I., the president of the organization. Much of the time will be given to the reports of the secretary and treasurer and the president's annual message. At the following sessions reports of the district chairmen will outline the activities of the federation and the delegates from the county and city Home Bureaus will give reports of the work done by their communities during the year, followed by discussion from the floor.

Among the many topics to be discussed are: Rural Schools, Country Store, Fairs, Rural Recreation, Rural Church, County Library, Community Newspaper, Needs of the School of Home Economics, Leadership Training, and many other problems of rural life.

Among the speakers will be Miss Florence E. Ward, of the United States department of agriculture; Dr. C. E. Ladd, of the state college of agriculture; Prof. Martha Van Benschoten, state leader of extension work, and Mrs. A. E. Bridgen, honorary president of the federation. At the joint session of the New York State Farm and Home Bureau Federation, Dr. Liberty Hyde Bailey and Prof. Anna Botsford Comstock will be the speakers.

Uster county will be represented by Mrs. Will Plank, Marlborough; Miss Winifred Driscoll, Milton, and Mrs. Edward Young, Milton, who is one of the directors of the New York State Home Bureau Federation. Any other Home Bureau members planning to attend are requested to send word to Miss Jennie C. Fisher, at the Home Bureau office.

Required Seven Years to Count Fortune.

DUKE OF NORFOLK

Although only seventeen years old, the Duke of Norfolk has inherited $85,000,000 from the estate of his father, the hereditary Earl Marshal of England and Chief Butler of the Empire. His father died in London seven years ago, but it has required that space of time to determine the extent of his wealth.

The Anti-Saloon League of New York

370 Seventh Avenue, New York City.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, held Tuesday, October 28th, the following resolutions were adopted:

The present deplorable situation in New York State in respect to liquor lawlessness is directly chargeable to the nullification action of Governor Smith in signing the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law. His excuse that the officers of the state have a responsibility to enforce the Federal law is specious as to logic and a deliberate encouragement to the bootleggers as to practical effect. The only remedy for this situation is the enactment of a state law coordinate in its terms with the Federal law—a law which will give effective power to the 25,000 officers of the State of New York and thus relieve the mere handful of 175 Federal officers of the burden of having to assume the entire task of enforcement. Governor Smith is unalterably opposed to such a measure of reasonable and proper law enforcement.

As a result of conferences between the Republican state leaders and representatives of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, Theodore Roosevelt, Republican candidate for Governor, has clarified the whole situation by giving positive assurance that he favors a state enforcement law extending full power to the officials of the state, whether these officers be state, county or municipal, to enforce prohibition. The alternative is perfectly clear. The believers in law should have no difficulty in arriving at a choice. The Anti-Saloon League believes that Colonel Roosevelt has made his position clear and definite that the supporters of law enforcement will receive his statements with gratification and will register that gratification in the way they cast their ballots at the polls.

Use Arresters For Lightning

Day of Lightning Rod Salesman Has Passed but Lightning Remains Danger Which Engineers Seek to Overcome.

Through the greater part of the nineteenth century, the lightning rod salesman became a national joke and a household nuisance, yet the problem of lightning protection grew steadily more serious. During the last two decades of the century, it simply had to be mastered, and by something more effective than the lightning rod, because of the needs of electrical transmission systems. The lightning arrester finally appeared, accompanied by much scientific groping around, as disclosed by E. E. F. Creighton, of the General Electric Company's general engineering laboratory, writing in the Electrical World.

"The first step in protection," says Mr. Creighton, "would be the suppression of the thunderstorm which has never been attempted scientifically. The next step is the attempt, exemplified in lightning conductors and lightning arresters, to lead the transient charges quickly and quietly to earth."

"Failing to accomplish this purpose, the last step to take is similar to that of the surgeon in amputating a gangrenous leg or arm. On the electrical system it is known as circuit breaker protection. The injunction is: 'Disconnect the damaged circuit before the short circuit can 'kill' the whole system.'"

Mr. Creighton notes that the heart of the modern circuit breaker is a device known as the H switch, a small cylindrical steel pot for oil in which a disconnecting rod is placed, surrounded by insulated baffles. This type of circuit breaker, he notes, was invented by E. W. Rice, Jr., now honorary chairman of the board of directors of the General Electric Company, and it embodies a distinct element of foresight.

Mr. Creighton reveals the long period of discouraging experience that occurred before a really reliable lightning generator was produced. In the case of one early type, he says, an electrical company which used it gave a glowing report of its protective value during an entire lightning season.

"The user," said Mr. Creighton, "was sincere, honest and scientific, also the user was lucky in regard to the location of thunderstorms during the entire summer. The next year he had to remove all the arresters."

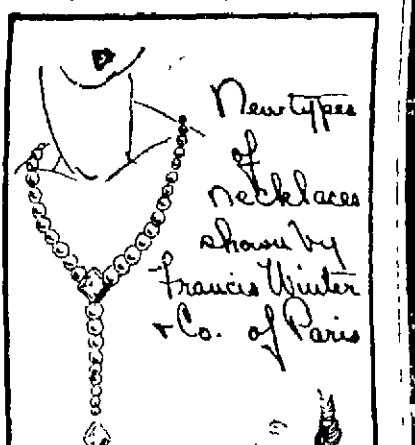

Sometimes excellent testimonials, voluntarily sent in, would be immediately followed by adverse reports on the same arresters. Different manufacturing companies put out arresters emphatically different. Then, the following year, each was led independently to adopt the other's unsuccessful practice.

Finally came the lightning generator, a laboratory means of imitating lightning, and with it a marked improvement in lightning arresters.

THE NECKLACE KNOCKS FOR ADMITTANCE.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

Pearls and rubies fortunately need no longer be beyond price. To be smartly turned out one simply must have a choker, and it should be, for evening, at least, of pearls.

New types of necklaces shown by Francis Hunter & Co. of Paris.

Painted pearls combined with white are featured in these loose end necklaces, and in the tail type as well.

Colored cut stones are used in these earrings.

Here are some of the new arrangements Paris approves, and notice that earrings are again important, although not only in the long pendant types. Large single knob earrings are worn with chokers of large beads, and pearls, be it known, are united in every comfortable tone from brown to yellow.

All tendencies point toward a winter of great brilliancy of color, and considerable elaboration of detail, and this implies the wearing of tail, and this implies, again, for considerable jewelry—again, fortunately, of the costume, rather than

Masculine Imagination

HE dearest woman in the world need not wear the dearest clothes in order to be fashionably attired. Not a bit of it, Mr. Man!

Isn't it just pure imagination—this masculine idea that women spend a lot of money for clothes?

Your wife probably spends quite a bit less for them than you do for yours—and most likely, gets quite a bit more for what she spends!

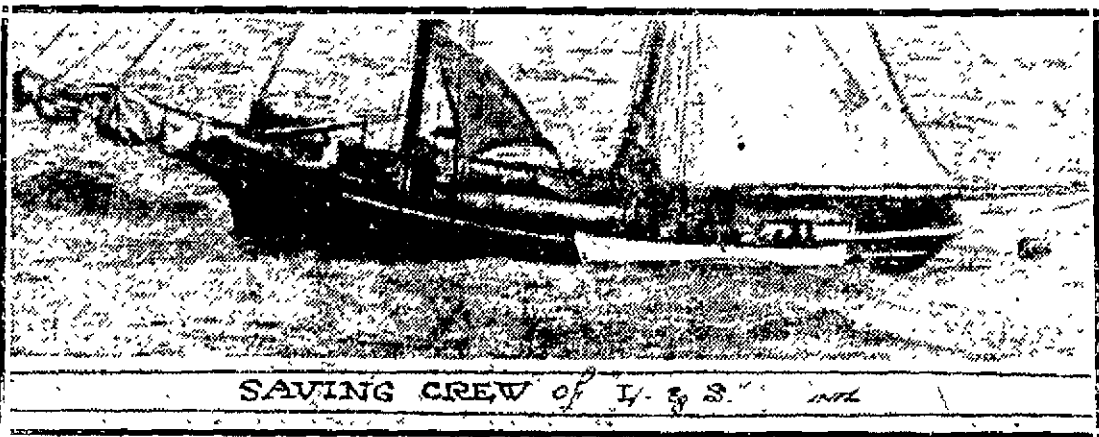

Much as you may think you know about handling money to advantage, chances are you might learn from her a valuable lesson in sound investment.

ULSTER COUNTY CHICKENS WIN STATE FAIR PRIZES.

The state fair at Syracuse, September 8 to 13, was represented by some birds from Ulster county. One of the exhibitors was the Cedar Glen Poultry Farm of Ulster Park, whose hen won first prize in a class of ten entries and the cockerel won first prize in a class of twenty-one entries. The cockerel also won the special prize given by Ralph Waterman of Millbrook, N. Y., for being the best White Leghorn male in the show, which is something to be proud of for there were over ninety White Leghorn male birds exhibited. The increased business at the Cedar Glen Poultry Farm demands larger housing facilities and Robert Taylor of Creek Locks, well known carpenter and builder, is erecting a new hen house for one thousand birds. The farm, located near Rifton, is always open for visitors.

Bible Is World's "Best Seller"

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Chicago, Oct. 30.—The Bible continues to be the world's best seller, with an annual distribution of more than 1,000,000 copies issued by the American Bible Society. This was attested in a report submitted today to the biennial convention here of the United Lutheran Church in America.

Lutheran members of the advisory board of the Bible Society announced that the largest circulation of the Bible outside of the United States was in China which last year received more than 2,500,000 copies of the great book, an increase of more than 500,000 over the previous year.

Despite the heavy loss from the earthquake in Japan which destroyed a printing plant and forms of Japanese, Chinese and Siamese Bibles, the distribution of the Book in Japan aggregated 343,000 copies, a gain of more than fifty per cent.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

JEAN, COUNTESS OF WESTMORE-LAND.

Eldest daughter of Henry, Earl of Surrey, who was beheaded in 1547, was the wife of Charles, Earl of Westmoreland, by whom she had four daughters. This lady made such progress in Latin and Greek under the instruction of Fox, the martyrologist, that she might compete with the most learned men of her age. The latter part of her life was rendered very unhappy by her husband's conduct, for he was engaged in the insurrection in 1569, and in consequence his property was confiscated and he himself sentenced to death, from which he escaped by leaving the country and remaining a long time in exile.

METHODISTS.

The first Methodist Society in America was formed in New York in 1766, and the first Methodist Church in that city was dedicated October 30, 1768, just 156 years ago today. The first conference of the Methodists was held in Philadelphia in 1773, when ten preachers, representing 1,160 members, joined in the program. Most of them were of English birth, and all were itinerants, who served scattered organizations in New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia and other states. The Revolution put a stop to Methodist activities for a time, but in 1784 sixty itinerant preachers met in a conference in which they formed an independent organization, which they called the Methodist Episcopal Church. The conference adopted articles of faith and an episcopal form of government. Subsequent conferences the structure of the church was gradually modified to meet new conditions, but by the beginning of the last century the characteristics of Methodism were well defined. The new denomination spread rapidly over North America, now being one of the largest in both the U. S. and Canada.

SAVING A PRESIDENT.

When President Harrison was a candidate for re-election, in 1892, he visited the candidate for Vice-President on the ticket with him, William Reid, at the latter's country place, Ophir Farm, White Plains, N. Y. The party left for the train after dark. Mr. Reid wanted to drive the president to the train, and took him in a light cart, to which was hitched his favorite horse. The next carriage had as passenger Senator Thomas H. Carter of Montana, and next were carriages containing the supporters of the presidential campaign. The night was very dark, and in making a turn the horse Mr. Reid was driving shied at a bush, ran into a telegraph pole, tipped over the carriage, and threw the president and Mr. Reid out.

Senator Carter's carriage came up the ditch into which he was flung, before the president had arisen from it, and it was found that the president had hit one of his knees, torn his trousers, and taken a good deal of skin off the knee. Senator Carter, relating the incident long afterwards said: "It's pretty hard to fool the reporters but we did it that time, as in less time than it takes to tell it, we turned the cart into the ditch, but the horse a sharp lick with the whip, starting it down the road, hustled the president and Mr. Reid into my carriage and drove off at a fast clip, arriving at the station long enough ahead of the others to prevent their knowing about the change of vehicles. We put a long overcoat on the president, and on the way in patched up his knee, did what we could with the torn trousers, and there was never a word printed about that accident which might have killed a president."

No Information Anent State Tax

State Tax Commissioner Says Law
Is "Air-tight" on Disclosures—Punishment for Glib Officials—Bureau Refused Many Requests.

"Neither the name of a single taxpayer filing returns with the state income tax bureau nor the amount of his tax will be given out," was the significant reply of Deputy Commissioner Thomas M. Lynch of that bureau, at Albany today, in response to inquiries received from all sections of the state.

"The New York state law," he continued, "is 'air-tight' so far as any disclosures are concerned. It punishes by $1,000 fine or imprisonment, or both, any official or employee who makes known the amount of income or any details from state income tax returns. This covers, too, absolute secrecy as to facts submitted at hearings held by the bureau, which are never open to the public. These, to my mind, are salutary provisions which should be retained in the law.
I believe they account in a great measure for the full and frank details of income set out in the million returns yearly filed with the bureau."

Mr. Lynch further stated that the bureau had refused many requests from deserted wives for information as to their husbands, which they wanted to use for the purpose of bringing actions for support. Another case where the bureau stood adamant and denied access to its records was an application from a district attorney of one of the largest counties, who wanted returns of an individual in John Doe proceedings.

A DISCREET ROBE DE NUIT.

(By Eleanor Gunn).

It is not given to us all to be able to follow the latest whims of fashion in minutest detail. The woman who purchases new lingerie is rightly always intrigued by the prevailing silhouette, and details reflected in underthings.

Obviously, the raised waistline makes an appeal, and women who,
because of their bulk, are restrained from outer experiments in this line, are not averse to trying the high waist over in the privacy of their boudoir. In consequence, there are all manner of attractive ways of suggesting it not actually exploiting, the raised line.

In one, a straightline gown with square neckline, nothing more drastic was resorted to than dainty bows of two-tone ribbon, placed under the bust. But, in the gown sketched, a more definite acknowledgment is made; ribbon again being instrumental in accomplishing the result.
The little lace-edged frill of chiffon is more decorative than comfortable
—most women being more concerned with the freedom of the neck than the freedom of the seas.

Among the newer gowns, are those which have a vestee of lace, and in a matching chemise this idea is practical, since it is supposed to serve as a gilet with a coat or open front frock.

In conformity to the mode, many pleats are employed and some circular panels let into costume slips, and even to the chemise.

Lace is far more important than for several seasons. The craze for severely tailored underthings has passed. Gowns not infrequently have a ruffled hem or are scalloped or cut in points, and some, even the daintiest, dare long sleeves—another indication that it pleases fashion to be demure.

THE OFFICE CAT

By Junius.

There are three kinds of men.
Blond men, dark men, and elevator boys. Blond men never take you where they said they would, dark men take you farther than they said they would, but elevator boys take you just where they said they would.
But who wants to go there?

Somehow, I never seem to be able to find things where I lay them, remarked the hen in the next yard.

Now isn't that just like a man?
ejaculated Mrs. Brown, as Phyllis passed with her new boyish bob.

A car which was driven by tourists came through the city today, written across the back of the machine was:
"Four wheels, no brakes, saloon tires."

If you look before you leap, you won't have to leap.

Experience would be a better
teacher if she'd stop to explain things.

Men are in three classes: The handsome, the intellectual, and the great majority.

Pennies make dollars, but dollars do not make sense—you have to coin your own common sense.

There's only one way to make aviation safe.

Yeh? what's that?
Have some good lawyers prove that the law of gravitation is unconstitutional.

The trouble with many of those ladies who secure divorces in Paris is that they start right in to collect reparations instead of alimony.

The most manifest sign of wisdom is continued cheerfulness.

Give the man with the clammy hand the go by. His brain is usually as wabby as his mit.

Fashion Note.

Skirts are to be shorter. But be calm—they will still be skirts.

A Rule of Life.

If you think a man's a fool,
Tell him so!
Though 'twill peeve him, as a rule,
Tell him so!
Keep this up awhile, old cock;
Never boost, but always knock,
Till some one removes your block,
Tell him so!

Try This on Some Time.

A very successful way of making a husband stay home at night is to stay there with him.

Self praise is no recommendation.

Whatever may be said against Turkey, it must be admitted the courts of that country have sensible men as judges. One judge has decided that poker is not a game of chance.

Arctic Flowers in Montana.

At the foot of a glacier in the Montana Rockies, Arctic flowers and specimens of the evergreens which correspond to the last trees of the North are found in abundance, having followed the retreating ice sheets thousands of years ago.

Ten Years Changes View.

A girl of twenty feels that the most difficult thing in the world is to lead a man to the altar. At thirty she realizes the most difficult thing to do is to keep the man she led to the altar at twenty to stay put.

Dance frocks of filmy georgette, combined with metal laces, chiffon velvet and velvet broche. There is a lovely clinging quality to these fabrics, which lend themselves to the new softly draped and straightline models.

One gown of elegant simplicity is of orange brocade. It is sleeveless and has moderately low neck, one long tassel at the side is its only ornament.

Price—$65.00

A very girlish frock of flame georgette has many ruffles of gold metal lace, edged with the flame georgette. A large moire bow is placed at the back.

Price—$55.00

For the larger woman, a heavily beaded white georgette frock, skirt trimmed at intervals with black and white un-curled ostrich. This gown is made over slip of heavy white satin.

Price—$59.50

Beautiful imported gowns of richly beaded georgettes and crepes in high shades. Moderately priced at

MILLIONS OF PEOPLE

Annually use organic Nuxated Iron to build up red blood, strength and endurance.

There are thousands who are aging and breaking down at a time of life when they should be enjoying that perfect health which carries defiance to disease simply because they are not aware of the condition of their blood. Without organic iron your blood carries no oxygen and without oxygen there is nothing to unite with the carbon in your food so what you eat does you no good. It is like putting coal into a stove without fire. You can now obtain organic iron like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils, and apples from any drugstore under the name of Nuxated Iron. Nuxated Iron also contains the principal chemical constituent of active, living nerve force. It is, therefore, a true blood and nerve food. It helps create and rebuild new and stronger red blood cells. It feeds the body the substances which nerve force must have to give it that vital, electromagnetic power which is stored in the nerve and brain cells of man. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, rundown men and women in two weeks time. The manufacturers guarantee successful results to every purchaser or they will refund your money.

Giant Thistle, Grown on Coast, in Demand

Among the profitable crops grown by Californians in the region of San Francisco is a giant Mediterranean species of thistle. Soil and climate there seem to be exactly suited to its needs, says the Pathfinder Magazine.

Attempts to grow it elsewhere have invariably resulted in failure. Like the thistles with which all are familiar, it has formidable spines, only they are longer and more cruel than the average. It has a large purple flower, so sweet scented that bees find it irresistible. Rarely, however, are the buds allowed to develop into flowers, for the buds are esteemed as a table delicacy, being harvested and sold as "artichokes."

A quarter apiece for the buds is not an unusual price in San Francisco and at that they take precedence over the finest oranges, runins, apricots, etc., for the growers cravily time their development so that they may be marketed just at the psychological moment, so to speak—that is, in midwinter, when there is little else of the same nature to compete with them. This is done by cutting back the plants in June, pruning them down to the ground. Within a short time new shoots appear. Then if plant food and water are supplied in sufficient abundance the long sunny days bring about ideal development.

The first harvest begins in October and reaches its peak about the first of April.

Don't Overdo Politeness.

Those who make an art of being polite are in danger of growing into a habit of too much fessness. Overdone politeness is icy.

Earthworms Valuable

Earthworms play a very important part in the formation of soil. Indeed Charles Darwin demonstrated that they are of incalculable value to agriculture. Angeworms feed on vegetable matter exclusively and in burrowing they take more or less earth into the alimentary canal where it is mixed with the vegetable food of the worm. Nearly all of this passes out with the castings which are always voided on the surface. Thus the worms are continually engaged in spreading a "natural compost" over the land. The process is called the formation of vegetable mold which is fertile both because of its composition and because the worms keep it stirred up and well aerated. Of course many other creatures are beneficial in the formation of soil, but the earthworms are the most important.—Pathfinder Magazine

Polo Has Long History

There is no game today, with a longer history and one so consistently romantic as that of polo. Over 100 years ago polo was first observed in Persia by early European travelers. Like Sir William Ouseley and Sir Anthony Shirley. The latter quoted his foreman, the Italian Pietro della Valle who, in 1618, had found polo under the patronage of Shah Abbas, and remarked that "it was a favorite recreation of kings and chiefs, and originally, I believe, considered as almost peculiar to illustrious personages." The French traveler Chardin says the Persians played with 30 or 40 on a side, though the Persian miniature reminds us that even then three or four-sided teams were common. Another traveler calls it "the game of Cam."

Y.M.C.A. Winter Social Program

Season Opens Friday Night With Big Supper—Elaborate Program of Socials, Suppers, Lectures and Other Activities Under Way.

Friday night, October 31, will mark the opening of the winter social program at the Y. M. C. A. which promises many good times to all the seniors. There will be a supper on Friday night at 6:15. All senior members are invited and requested to be present. Invitations have been sent to about one hundred and eighty members. For once business will be combined with pleasure, for aside from the good time the class will appoint a social committee and a chairman who will have charge of all suppers, entertainments, socials, and all other activities of the social department. It is hoped that the class can be fully organized at this time.

Mr. Buley will be on deck to tell of the "Gym" program for the winter. The classes are now in full swing, and the attendance growing every day.

A few of the dates are as follows: Tuesday, November 3. First week, senior social.

Tuesday, November 25. Thanksgiving social.

Tuesday, December 23. Christmas party (Co-ed).

Thursday, January 1. New Year's entertainment (Three Star Trio).

Other events, dates for which have not been arranged, include lectures, suppers, socials, Bible classes, educational classes, Glee Club rehearsal, orchestra rehearsal, pool tournaments and other activities to be arranged by the social committee.

Will Be Big Factor in Industrial World

While but twenty-seven years old, young Hugo Stinnes is now managing the estate of hundreds of millions that belonged to the great German industrialist. He is thus described by Dr. Ludwig Stein, German publicist, in Hearst International Magazine.

"I first met young Stinnes in 1913. He was eighteen, shy, reticent and reserved, but extraordinarily mature and intelligent. I talked with him a long time and enjoyed the conversation at least as much as he did."

"The next day I saw his father and he said, 'Junior is much brighter and abler than I am,' adding that some day the young man would succeed to the control of the Stinnes interests."

"If young Stinnes knows much about business it is because he was always in such close touch with his father. It was the custom of the elder Stinnes to hold nightly conferences with his wife, son and daughters, during which he would speak with the utmost freedom of his business plans and prospects. These conferences perhaps did not mean much to the ladies, but they enabled young Hugo to see exactly how his father went about it to carry on his great enterprises."

"During the war, young Stinnes was sent by his father to Scandinavia on innumerable secret errands of business and politics. For months in succession he was on trains running between Berlin and Stockholm most of the time. On these errands, he conferred with bankers, statesmen and diplomats. To them he must have appeared like a youth. But it is indicative of his temperament and his ability that he gained both the respect of those with whom he conferred and the undisguised appreciation of his father. On these errands, Junior always made good. He accomplished what his father wished him to do."

Times Change

If you want to know how times are changing, take the story of the celebrated sheik.

Ibn Ali Hussein is the most illustrious member of the family. It is he who rules the desert around the sacred city of Mecca, and claims descent from no less a personage than the prophet Mohammed himself.

Ibn Ali is monarch of a wide sea of sand, does he roam the desert rifling treasure chests and snatching ladies from their escorts in moving picture style.

Apparently not listen to this report of modern Arab manners vouchsafed by the London Times.

Ibn Ali writes his orders with a fountain pen. He operates a wire less. He owns a newspaper called El Kibla, dictates editorials and corrects the galley proof.

Oh, yes—and his telephone number is Mecca, No. 1.—From Collier's

Good 'Phone Wrinkle

Speaking of German telephones—they have one little wrinkle, which we opine might be worthy of America's attention. Using the instrument at "Zentral" 6387, say, one desires to call Doctor Gradewitz, at Rheingau 1308. When the operator at the Zentral exchange answers, one doesn't shoot the whole number at her, American style, one simply asks for the Rheingau exchange. That is, one enunciates the single word "Rheingau," and in a moment one hears the same word repeated in one's ear, by way of notice that one has got Rheingau. One then asks for number 1308, without any prefix of course, and one gets it. With fewer repetitions of the number, it stands to reason there are fewer wrong connections given.—Scientific American

Friend of Homeless Animals

Miss Margaret Crouch of Butte, Mont., vowed many years ago never to allow a dog or cat to go hungry in that city of long cold winters. Being a working woman, she could not establish an animal dispensary, but she turned her modest home over to strays, and often has as many as 50 homeless animals staying with her. They literally seek her out, no doubt through some mysterious underground information current among homeless animals, for she has often found in the mornings four or five homeless dogs and starved cats waiting patiently on her narrow porch. Fed, treated and named, the animals are then passed on to other kindly people who give them homes, and Miss Crouch takes in others of the endless number of waifs.

Keep Movie Music Out of Churches

Church Music Committee of United Lutheran Church in America Finds Tendency in Churches to Use Organ for Operatic Effects.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—The singing of anthems and of congregational hymns is as much a part of the devotional service of the churches as the sermon itself, according to the report of the Committee on Church Music to the Lutheran convention meeting here in the Edgewater Beach Hotel. Anthems and hymns must be selected with this object alone in mind, and organists and choirs must be so instructed.

In the selection of preludes and postludes, the organist is instructed to be "careful to select only that which is appropriate for the house of God. So much of what is published today under the title of organ music is derived from purely secular sources and written in a secular style. Music taken from the opera must not be introduced into the service of God's house. The organist may be called a 'musical pastor' and by means of judicious selections, he can do much to inspire a devotional frame of heart and mind; whereas by the contrary course he can also most effectually destroy it. If he cannot do the former, it were better his instrument remain silent."

The influence of the movies in the playing of "flippant and irreverent music and the creating of theatrical impression by the playing of soft music during certain spoken parts of the service, even during prayers," is denounced as a "stunt" that cannot possibly minister to devotion.

The church is asked to call to the attention of organ builders an unfortunate habit which has gained ground among them of including theatrical devices in church organs.

Builders who construct theatre and movie organs include only "a tone quality of their own, many solo stops, and numerous other devices for obtaining unusual effects." It is charged that organ builders are looking upon unsuspecting congregations, pastors and organists these organs with fancy devices which belong properly in the theatre and have no business in the church.

Such unusual devices in a church organ, it is claimed, prove a temptation to the organist, who frequently carries a living during the week playing the organ in the local cinema house, and on Sunday gives his service to the church. Finding these stops he will use them, and "instead of church music, the congregation is treated to movie music."

The committee has conducted a two-year survey of church music as it is practiced in the churches of many denominations in this country. The investigation has reached from coast to coast. It is the opinion of the members of the committee that it is not necessary for Sunday schools and young people's societies in the churches to use song books containing "only the light stuff that is ground out year after year by men and women who have neither the poetic gift, nor the spirit of genuine devotion, nor musical ability," which is necessary to produce a first-rate devotional hymn. "The result is 'cheap' hymns, set to music of the jazz and dance hall variety, 'composed' not with a view to training children for the church and the right kind of a devotional life, but to enrich the 'authors,' composers, and, above all, the publishers. Is it any wonder that children lose reverence for sacred things and places when in

Engage Music for Victory Ball

At a recent meeting of Kingston Post, No. 150, American Legion, it was voted to award the music for the sixth annual victory ball, to be held at the armory on Tuesday evening, November 11, to the Imperial Radio-casting Orchestra, John P. Erne, director.

It will be a full ball orchestra, each musician attired in a full dress suit. A musical concert will be rendered from 8 to 9 p. m., at which time dancing will start. It is expected that the affair will be brought to a happy and successful close at 1 a. m., November 12.

Counting by Tens

Our system of counting by tens started ages ago when men counted on their fingers. Because they had ten fingers, a numbering on their hands made a unit of counting, and that was the beginning of the decimal system. A count on their fingers and toes resulted in twenty and thus the checking off of things by scores began.

The Sunday school they are taught to sing music reminiscent of the movies and jazz-band."

The Church Music Committee has established a system of convocations, held in many cities in different parts of this country and Canada, where organists, choir masters, pastors, and others interested, are treated to practical illustrations of the best forms of church music. These convocations have experiences packed houses, have hung out the S. R. O. sign, and, according to the committee "are having wide influence in the regions in which they are held."

Ulster Registers 519 More Voters

Slight Increase in Registration Over 1920, With One District Missing—No Report Received From Second District of Marbletown.

With one district missing, Ulster county shows an increased registration of 519 voters for the general election next Tuesday.

The missing district is the second district of the town of Marbletown, no report of whose registration has been received by the board of elections, although the election officials invoked the aid of Sheriff Wells to aid them in securing the figures which are required by law to be filed with the election board.

The reports of election officials of the other districts of Ulster county show a total registration for 1924 of 43,883, as compared with 43,364 in 1920.

A total of 3,887,554 persons are qualified to vote in New York state next Tuesday. These figures represent an increase of 342,994 over four years ago and of 621,312 over the total registration in 1922. Increased registration prevailed this year in all but seven counties, where decreases occurred totaling 6,884. The seven counties showing a smaller registration than in 1920 are Clinton, Delaware, Jefferson, Lewis, New York, St. Lawrence and Schuyler.

A comparative tabulation of the registrations in 1920 and 1924 has just been made by Secretary of State Hamilton. It shows a number of interesting features.

In 1920, New York city had a registration of 1,473,546. This year's registration amounted to 1,499,546, an increase of 25,999 in the four years.

This year's registration up-state totaled 2,388,009, a gain of 216,995 over 1920, when the registration amounted to 2,171,911.

Increases in registration this year over 1920 run from as low as 216 in Yates county to as high as 53,925 in Queens county. The slump in Clinton county amounted to 372; in Delaware, to 188; Jefferson, 684; Lewis, 261; New York, 4,216; St. Lawrence, 1,110; and Schuyler, 53.

Saugerties Dance Discontinued.

The weekly dances which have been conducted each Thursday evening at Lasher's Hall, Saugerties, by William Whittaker of this city, have been discontinued. The dances will continue each Saturday evening at Clermont Hall. Music by the Apex 5.

Deer Season Opens Saturday

Today and Saturday are the last days of the season to legally shoot pheasants in Ulster county. The deer season opens Saturday, November 1, and closes November 15, being for fifteen days. In Greene county the open season for deer is from November 1 to November 8, inclusive. Wild deer having horns not less than three inches in length may be taken.

Sees Bridges of Iron

as Future Curiosities

Iron bridges will be curiosities within a span of time much shorter than that from King, "Tut" to the present, Gustav Lindenthal, consulting engineer, declares in a recent issue of Engineering News-Record.

"Bridge construction and bridge architecture will be to posterity a surer index of the progress of our present-day civilization than houses, temples or cathedrals of past ages appear to us," the engineer predicts.

"This will be so because the economizing of iron, when it becomes costly, will probably begin in bridge and structural construction before it begins in other kinds of construction."

"In a span of time much shorter than that from Tut-Ankh-Amen to the present, steel bridges will probably have disappeared from the face of the earth through corrosion and neglect. Iron bridges, iron ships and railroads will then be curiosities."

"Iron is a more perishable material, particularly in northern climates, than stone, of which were built the pyramids, the Greek temples, and the wonderful Roman arch aqueducts. These could be built again, but not iron bridges."

"It is probable that the zenith of large bridge construction will be reached within the next 50 or 100 years, because of the increased cost of iron and coal."

Use Few Words.

As it is the mark of great minds to say many things in a few words, so it is that of little minds to use many words to say nothing.—La Rochefoucauld.

Just About.

Using mad stones to prevent hydrophobia from mad dog bites is just as sensible and effective as carrying a rabbit's foot for luck or a buckeye to prevent rheumatism.

Slight Misunderstanding.

She (after their marriage)—"I thought you said you were remembered in your uncle's will?" He—"No, I said I was remembered by my uncle. Will he sent me a postal card."

The Grizzly's No Slouch.

The lion may be the king of beasts, but it's lucky for him he doesn't live in the climate which breeds grizzly bears.

Hard-Working Burglar Forced to Draw Line

Bert met his old friend Bill the Burglar and the two got chatting about things in general.

"I hear you've left your wife," remarked Bert presently. "Why did you do that?"

"Because she was always wantin' me to do somethin'," snarled the burglar moodily.

"What do you mean?" asked his friend.

"No matter how busy or tired I was, she was always naggin' me to do somethin' for her. At last, one night, it was too much."

"How was that?" said the other, interested.

"Well, I came in about three o'clock in the morning," explained Bill, "all worn out from doing too much work. I had opened two strong boxes and finished up by forcing a couple of safes, to say nothing of a vault I cracked earlier in the evening. An' then, when I got in, what do you suppose that woman wanted me to do?"

"What?"

"As I stand here, it's true!" growled Bill the Burglar. "She wanted me to open a box of sardines for her."—London Answers.

Full Explanation

"So you were caught red handed counterfeiting ten-dollar bills?" said the police magistrate. What have you to say for yourself?"

"I am not a malicious counterfeiter, and I should never have been arrested," replied the suspect. "I am a chemist whose interest is entirely scientific. I have been trying to make gold from less precious elements and I have only got as far as ten-dollar bills."

Fashion's Trend in Fall Footwear

A beautiful simplicity is the keynote of the season's models in fall footwear. The three pumps here illustrated are striking examples of this. All three are made of soft kid, fit with a glove-like perfection and emphasize the naturally beautiful lines of the foot. The buckled model is absolutely plain save for the buckle itself which is a square design of cut steel. The pumps of cut out design in the center have a plain vamp and back with an open work effect across the arch. The black oxe pumps to the right are trimmed only with a silk binding.

ONE CENT A WORD ADVS. BRING RESULTS

NEW FROCKS TO WELCOME
THE OPENING OF SCHOOL

THRIFTY mothers and alert seamstresses delight in the vogue for combining two materials in frocks for school girls. This allows the use of short lengths of cloth, remnants and left-overs from the wardrobes of grownups, when putting together the little girl's school dresses and the pleasant exercise of much ingenuity. To make a new dress grow where two old ones are doing nothing, is an accomplishment to be proud of.

A pretty example of a school frock made of two materials appears here and the design is adapted to any of the serviceable wool or crepe dress fabrics that are used for daytime frocks. It also suggests a solution to the problem of lengthening or enlarging a dress that is outgrown, but still has much service in it. Two shades of one color, or two contrasting colors may be chosen and the two different materials used—as twill or serge with velvet, flannel and duvetyne or wool goods with taffeta. For a pretty finish, sure to delight the little wearer, a spray of gay flowers (done in simple embroidery) as shown in the illustration, may be added.

For slim little girls very pretty straight-line dresses have plaited panels set in on each side a few inches below the waistline. A favored trimming for school girls' dresses is made of inch-wide strips of bright colored flannels, or in silk, with three or four strips stitched together to form a border about the bottom of the skirt, around the neck and as a finish for the sleeves. ## DALMATIA

Prominent Citizens of Zara.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

The World war and its subsequent treaties made striking changes in the Adriatic sea from Italy, but did not change the picturesque quality of that mountainous strip of coast that is still known to the world as Dalmatia under the Yugo-Slavian flag as it was under that of Austria-Hungary.

The Dalmatian coast deserves its reputation for picturesque beauty. The great limestone mountains, practically bare of vegetation and culminating in peaks over 5,000 feet high, descend to the sea in almost unbroken line, while a continuous fringe of islands forms a buffer between the coast and the Adriatic from Fiume to where the Bocche di Cattaro lies like a giant starfish spread out upon the land, cutting deep into the mountains with its great tentacles.

The fertile rivers lie in nooks of the coast, sheltered from the fierce "bora," "the wind of death," which in winter sweeps down from the mountain gorges with terrific force; these are practically the only cultivated lands in this desert country. The contrast between the island-studded sea, the rugged mountains, and the semi-tropical vegetation, combined with old-world architecture of the cities, affords a picture not easily forgotten.

The interior is wild, lonely and impressive, and so barren and uninviting that except for the falls of the Krka it is seldom visited by the traveler.

The towns of the coast are distinctive and have each their special points of interest. Zara is the one important mainland town besides Fiume, which has been placed under Italian sovereignty since the war, the other bits of east coast territory taken over by Italy being on islands. Zara is noted all over the world for its marachino. Aside from this, however, the town has many attractions.

Zara is Attractive.

On landing from the steamer in the land-locked harbor, we find ourselves in front of a gate in the town wall. Over the gate is the winged lion of Saint Mark, often met with here and elsewhere in Dalmatia, and a symbol of the former dominion of the Republic of Venice. Passing through the gate, we enter the narrow paved streets of a typical Italian city, such as we may imagine it to have been two or three centuries ago, except that the hotels are more comfortable. There are a number of medieval churches in the town, interesting architecturally, and containing works of art. The cathedral in particular, a majestic Romanesque church, is richly adorned outside with many arcades of little columns and inside with marbles and paintings.

Wandering among the narrow streets, one comes upon several open squares and market places, where in the morning scores of peasants may be seen in their brilliant-colored costumes. There are Roman remains, too—columns and statues. No railroad as yet reaches Zara.

The coasting steamer comes out of the harbor, encircles the point of land on which the city stands, and skirts low-lying shores, passing among innumerable islands. All at once a narrow opening appears; within it is the spacious harbor of Sebenico, with the town rising from the water to a fort crowning the hill. In the middle of the town stands the cathedral, of which the observer gets charming glimpses from the harbor and through the narrow streets. It is a beautiful example of the Venetian Gothic of the Fifteenth century, richly adorned with carving and surmounted by an octagonal dome. Here also the streets are filled with strange and brilliant costumes; red is the predominant color. From Sebenico a railroad runs to Spalato, and also into the interior. Spalato, the largest city in Dalmatia, consists of two parts—the old town, built entirely within the walls of the great palace of Diocletian, two hundred yards long and almost as broad, and the new town, stretching to the west along the shore and to the north toward the mountains. In the old town, buildings of Roman, medieval and modern times are inextricably mingled. The streets are mere tunnels, and to walk through them at night is a weird experience. In the middle is the cathedral into which the mausoleum of the emperor has been transferred. The new quarters of the town are spacious, and of course comparatively commonplace, but the old town is unique.

The islands south of Spalato are worth visiting, though express steamers pass them by. The most interesting of these islands are Lesina, Lissa, and Curzola. Lissa has given its name to two famous naval battles—one between the English and the French in 1811, and one between the Austrians and the Italians in 1866. The two harbors of the island, Lissa and Comisa, are exceedingly beautiful. The chief source of income in this part of Dalmatia is from the sea, and the costumes of the fishermen are less picturesque than those of the islanders who come to the coast towns on the mainland. In architectural beauty Curzola is particularly striking; it is a diminutive walled city on a point of land which juts out from the large island of the same name into the channel which separates it from the mainland. Opposite, the mountains rise directly from the sea, with a few villages here and there along the shore.

Ragusa is easily queen of the Dalmatian cities. None can compare with her in beauty of site or architectural and historical interest. She has stood for centuries a sister republic to Venice, a bulwark in Europe against the Turk, a wise and prosperous state. The great walls still inclose the town and are practically intact. They form a striking contrast to the architectural delicacy of the public buildings and places which rise on the steeply terraced streets, for the town is built on a narrow peninsula between the mountains and the sea.

Peasants and Costumes.

The morlaks or peasants are a sturdy, independent race, mostly of Slav extraction, and distinctly well to do, especially about Spalato and Ragusa, where the soil is fertile and the crops large.

The tiny Dalmatian cap of scarlet cloth, half embroidered in black with a black tassel, is worn by the men the entire length of the coast, while no inhabitant of the peninsula is seen without the useful bag slung over one shoulder, of woven carpet material, embroidered linen, or leather studded with nails. It serves all purposes—a cradle for the baby, a wardrobe for the family clothes, a ladder for the provisions, as well as a convenient receptacle for little pigs going to market. Except for these common features the costumes vary in every district. As Zara may be seen the striking sleeveless scarlet vest ornamented with silver buttons, while about Sebenico the men affect a curious waistcoat and jacket of brown homespun, piped and trimmed with woolen fringe of bright magenta color.

In the country the women wear a heavy apron of carpet material heavily fringed and are seldom seen without a distaff in their hands as they ride or walk to market.

South of Ragusa there are no harbors until one reaches the Bocche di Cattaro, an extraordinary fjord, suggesting Norway in its grandeur and the Italian lakes in its luxuriance and its wealth of color. As the boat winds through one narrow channel after another, new arms of water keep opening up, until after a long course, but still quite near the sea, we reach Cattaro, at the head of the fjord.

Expression Actually
Invitation to Death

The origin of some common expressions is always interesting, and whether the following is authentic or not is an open question. When in ancient days the weaving industry of Halifax, England, was a cottage craft—a farmer's family working on clumsy handlooms—the "pieces" used to be spread out on the hillside, and were therefore peculiarly liable to theft.

Particular crimes led to particular remedies, and a custom, which had the authority of a local law, grew up, that anyone convicted of stealing cloth to the value of 13 pence halfpenny was liable to immediate execution, a drastic law which naturally safeguarded the cloth industry.

Punishment was carried out, not by hanging, but by a sort of gallows. This was the Halifax gibbet law, the name of which is preserved by a still standing street in the town, while the actual knife of the gibbet may be seen in the old mayor's office at Wakefield. Halifax thus acquired a reputation among thieves and vagabonds as the last town in England desirable to visit. And to tell anyone to go to Halifax is equivalent to bidding him to "go hang!"—Chicago Journal.

Genius of Philology
Glean Stern Justice

Curious pleas have sometimes been put forward in support of the reprieve of notorious criminals. One of the strangest was that on behalf of George Ruloff, an American school teacher, who was convicted in 1870 of a series of robberies and murders. His own wife and daughter being among the victims. For cold-blooded cruelty his record would be hard to beat, but Ruloff had his other side.

He was an ardent philologist, and had been engaged for years on the invention of a universal language. No one could attempt to palliate his crimes, but a widely signed petition was presented to the governor of Virginia for his reprieve on the ground that as his invention, if completed, would be of the utmost benefit to mankind it would be criminal folly to extinguish such a light of learning. The governor thought otherwise and Ruloff was duly hanged.

By No Means

A farmer had a dispute with his son. For some months they quarreled until, at last, wishing to settle matters one way or the other, the farmer issued a summons against the young man.

"Your name is Kenneth Perkins, is it not?" inquired the son's counsel. "It is sir," replied the farmer to the dignified tones.

"What?" asked the old man, somewhat puzzled.

"I have, sir."

"And do I understand you to say that you have ignored your son for the past month?"

Careless Hunter
Kills Himself

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Struck by a shot from his own gun, as he was bending over to pick up a cock pheasant, Earl Fowler, forty, manager of the Irving Dillaye Vann Farms, was instantly killed this morning. The full charge of a shot gun tore through his breast.

Fowler made the first bag of the morning when he brought down a fine, big cock pheasant in the heart of the swamp. As he bent over to pick up the bird, his gun, the barrel of which was leaning against his chest, was discharged in some unexplainable manner.

In loving memory of my dear daughter, Alice E. Hemstead, who died October 27, 1918, 6 years ago. In a distant grave yard Where the flowers have decayed, Sleeps the one I loved so dearly, I tried so hard to save.

Dearest Alice thou has left me, And my loss I deeply feel, But 'tis God that has bereft me, He can all my sorrow heal.

Yet again I hope to meet you, When the days of life are fled, 'Tis in heaven in joy I greet you, Where no farewell tears are shed. MOTHER, BROTHER, SISTERS AND BROTHERS.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 30.—The upward movement in stock prices gathered momentum today. Vigorous buying of the mercantile, independent, steel, oil and a few railroad stocks sent prices of many active stocks to the highest price level of the current movement. In some cases they went to the high level of the year. Activity was not uniform, however, periods of heavy buying alternating with dullness in which the market barely moved.

The independent steel stocks were in higher ground, following the lead of Republic Steel, which advanced nearly 2 points to 13 on publication of its report for the third quarter showing earnings of 52 cents a share. Bethlehem recovered a point of its lost ground; Vanadium gained a point at 25 1/4 and Penn Seaboard at 2 1/4 also reached the high on the movement.

Railroads and oil stocks, which led the market in the first hour, dropped into secondary position later. Active movements in Mallinson Silk, American Woolen, American International, International Tobacco, Montgomery Ward, Baldwin Locomotive and Continental Can made fractional improvement in prices. There were some irregularities in specialties, Yellow Cab Manufacturing dropping to a new low at 37 1/2.

The lower trend in money rates extended to short term commercial paper and bankers acceptances. Cotton was steady, grains irregular and sterling exchange strong, with demand sterling up 2 points.

Six Lives Lost in
$1,250,000 Fire

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Avon, Calif., Oct. 30.—The ravages of the Teredo, a marine worm, was today attributed as the indirect cause of a disaster here last night which probably took the lives of six men and caused a loss of $1,250,000. The Teredo undermined the piling of the Associated Oil Company's terminal wharf here, the wharf sagged, snapping electric wires, setting off oil and gasoline stored on the wharf and starting a spectacular fire that raged throughout the night and destroyed the big oil tanker Alden Anderson.

Jack Crawford, a pump man is believed to have burned to death and First Officer R. Schroeder, Third Officer T. Anderson, Nelson Boushader, seaman, Fall River, Mass.; Arthur McDonald, mess boy, New York and Oscar Pierson, oiler, are believed to have drowned. Other members of the crew numbering 36 have been accounted for.

Explosion after explosion followed the outbreak of the fire which was accompanied by a terrific blast amid the 15,000 cases of gasoline stored on the pier.

Beginning of Empire
in Great Northwest

Large looms the Columbia river in the history of our country. It was the key that unlocked the great Northwest and added three states to the Union—the only portion of the United States acquired by right of discovery, possession and settlement, says the Nation's Business.

It was in the mouth of the Columbia that Captain Gray of Boston sailed his ship Columbia in 1792 and raising the Stars and Stripes, took possession of the Northwest in the name of the United States.

Here, where the mighty Columbia tumbles its waters into the Pacific, Lewis and Clark, first to carry our flag across the continent, reached their western destination in the winter of 1805-06.

Another six years saw the Astor-Hunt expedition, traveling by land and sea, establish at the mouth of the Columbia the first permanent American settlement on the Pacific coast.

Then followed the outposts of empire—the missionary, the trapper, the adventurer. Came 1843! Thrilled by the story of the paradise beyond the mountains and fired by the militant cry of "54-40 or fight!" of Senator Thomas Hart Benton, the ox-drawn covered wagon trains started moving westward on the greatest migration of all history, bringing within a little more than a decade 200,000 settlers who established homes, schools and churches, founded an empire, and saved the great Northwest for the Union.

Key Is One of Oldest of Religious Symbols

When you next unlock the door of your home or office, reflect a moment upon the ancient and historic symbolism of the key. If you ever have the opportunity to examine the images of the Egyptian deities you will notice in the hands of some of them a cross with a circular handle. It represents the Ankh, or key of life, one of the oldest of all religious symbols, denoting the power to open and close the doors of heaven. The key had a magical meaning for the Greeks and Romans. Their gods were often given the title of key-bearer, as, for example, Janus, the god of gates, who was supposed to unlock the doors of war and peace. In early Christian history the symbol of the key was associated with St. Peter, with his two keys of gold and iron. In the Middle Ages the key was used to assist in the identification of guilty persons. If, for instance, a thief had been committed, a key was laid on the open page of a Bible, when it was supposed to move towards the culprit. Wedding rings had their origin in the key presented to the Roman bride by her husband, as a sign of her authority in his household.

Proof of Smoked Ham

That the proof of the smoked ham is in the smell is the conclusion reached by the wholesale meat packers, as a result of years of experience, according to a story recently published. This ham-smelling business, moreover, as might be expected, is of a nature that, to become an expert at it, requires years of training. A man experienced in this line of work, however, is able to tell 2,000 or 3,000 hams a day, and in some of the large houses, where many thousands are turned out daily, there may be a regular corps of them employed. Upon the infallibility of the judgment of these men, indeed, the reputation of such concerns largely depends. Certainly there are more ways of making a living than the average individual realizes!—Christian Science Monitor.

Society Notes

Third Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman H. Ryan were surprised Tuesday night by a number of their friends at their home, 585 Broadway, in honor of their third wedding anniversary. Games and a buffet lunch were enjoyed.

Atharhacton Club.

The Atharhacton Club met on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Harold King on Fair street. An admirable and interesting paper was given by Mrs. William R. Kraft on "The Romance of Pioneer Life." Next week the club will meet with Mrs. Alfred D. Van Buren.

Halloween Party

The regular meeting of the Dorcas Society was held at the home of Theora Ryer, 50 Hoffman street on Wednesday evening, at which time the annual Halloween party was enjoyed. The costumes worn by the members created much merriment. Games and refreshments were enjoyed during the evening.

Crosby-Malia.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Mary's rectory at 3 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, by Rev. Thomas A. Keane, uniting in marriage Miss Florence A. Malia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Malia of this city to Lincoln E. Crosby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Crosby of this city. The bride was attended by her sister, Rosalie Malia. The best man was Harold B. Hicks. Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for an extended honeymoon trip. The bride was a very popular employee of the New York Telephone Company. The groom is employed by Philip Goldrick and Sons.

Halloween Party At Port Even.

The Ever-Ready Club held a Halloween party Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Robert Torrens at Port Even. The guests upon arriving were met at the door by a white-robed ghost who pointed to the stair case where a second ghost likewise pointed to the upper hall where a third ghost stood sentinel. The spacious parlor was pretty indeed with its decorations of corn stalks, pumpkins, jack-o-lanterns, autumn leaves, crepe festoons and in the bay window the "witch's cauldron." Each guest was in turn initiated into the evening's festivities by being beheaded. Halloween party was the first game enjoyed, the leader asking, "My Halloween cat takes buttercups, what does your cat like?" All sorts of answers were forthcoming, the correct one being a yellow object. After this the guests tried to obtain a bite from an apple on the one end of a yard stick, revolving from a suspended position. Much merriment was enjoyed when instead of getting the bite of apple the other end of the stick on which was a bag of flour, hit the player's face. Partners were then chosen for a game of cord chewing. Six feet of cord with a raisin tied in the center were given to each pair, the object being to eat the string, the one arriving at the raisin first being the winner. The ladies then were asked to guess the gentlemen's names by seeing their eyes through a sheet suspended from the doorway. The gentlemen likewise had to guess the ladies' names. At twelve o'clock delicious refreshments were served.

Scarcely had the guests finished when two ghosts were escorted into the parlor by the "Old Witch." At the "witch's cauldron" a famous brew was now prepared, from which the guests were given fortunes. Much laughter was heard as the fortunes were read aloud. Then the rattling of chains was heard and a ghost appeared who in sepulchral tones told gruesome tale of a man named Smith who was murdered and his remains were then, passed around. He departed with woeeful groans and with rattling of his bones. Among the guests who enjoyed the evening's festivities were: Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Howe, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Van Leuven, Mr. and Mrs. William Hartman, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Mable, Mr. and Mrs. Alanson Short, Alanson Short, Jr., Miss Alice LaPine, Ralph Shults, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Christian, Miss Marjorie Christian, Mr. and Mrs. Orla Towliger, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, the Rev. and Mrs. C. G. Gorse, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Fronsfield, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Torrens, Robert Torrens, Jr., Miss Jessie Torrens, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Tinnic, Miss Mollie Bishop, Mrs. Arthur Fowler, Mrs. John Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rice, William Lapine.

The funeral of Charles McClung, beloved husband of Anna E. Loran, who died at his home, No. 17 Hone street, on Tuesday afternoon, will take place from his late residence on Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, with interment in Wiltwyck cemetery. Mr. McClung for a number of years was employed by F. D. Hunt as a painter. He was an active member of the Painters' Union, Minnevaska Tribe of Red Men, and a member of Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. and A. M. Besides his wife he is survived by his mother, Mrs. Catherine McClung, and two sisters, Mrs. LaRue Weber of Kingston and Mrs. William Lawson of Rochester, N. Y.

The South Sea Bubble

Speculation at its wildest was shown in the "South Sea Bubble," a $50,000,000 project launched by Robert Harley, earl of Oxford, England, to develop trade monopoly with Spain about 1711. When Spain, after the treaty of Utrecht, refused to open her commerce to England, the privilege which the South Sea boasted of getting became worthless. In spite of that stock rose to $1000 a share, largely through speculation, until Sir John Blunt, one of the leaders, sold out, and thousands were beggared with the drop of the stock. Fraud was disclosed and the company paid only 33 per cent.

Origin of Name "Canada"

According to Father Hennepin, the name Canada was derived from a corruption of the Spanish words Capo de Nuda, or Cape of Nothing, which the early voyagers gave to the scene of their discoveries when, under a conviction of its utter barrenness and infertility, they were about abandoning it in disgust, says the Detroit News. It has been conjectured by late historians, with greater appearance of probability, that Canada is a modification of the Spanish word signifying "a passage" because the Spaniards thought they could find a passage to India through Canada.

Explaining Bishop's Garb

That the modern bishop wears the garb he does only because it is the relic of the days long ago when a bishop had to ride about his diocese in all manner of weather in order to make the regular visits to his very large flock is a theory advanced in England. The apron is a relic of the riding apron, it is maintained, and the cords on the hat were once hat cords to protect against high winds, and the breeches and leggings are still familiar in the garb of the equestrian.

Betsy Ross.

Elizabeth Griscom (Betsy Ross) was a daughter of Samuel and Rebecca (James) Griscom. She was born January 1, 1752, at Philadelphia, Pa. Her parents were Quakers. Betsy was the seventh daughter. In consequence of her marrying an Episcopalian she was disowned by the Friends. In 1777 she made the famous flag.

WALKER BEAT MALONE.

Bout With Dave Shade Expected in Near Future.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 30.—Micky Walker, having defeated Jack Malone, veteran St. Paul middleweight, in twelve rounds here last night, was expected to come to terms for defense of his world's welterweight title in a bout with Dave Shade in the near future.

In beating Malone Walker took nearly every round from the western middleweight, largely by his aggression and heavy punching. Malone's excellent condition enabled him to weather the storm.

Morgenweckers Hand Original Celtics Trimming

Carl Husta, Kingston's Dashing Forward, Captures Scoring Honors—Large Crowd Views Best Court Game in Years.

The Original Celtics, claimants of the world championship in professional basketball, have met defeat before and at the hands of a Morgenweck quintet, but the set back administered the Shamrock wearers Wednesday evening at the local armory by a Morgenweck combination seemed to be more crushing and taste more deliciously to local fans.

A very large crowd turned out to see the struggle and were well repaid. The like of this contest will probably not be seen again this season unless it is staged between these same teams. The game was far from being gentle, both teams being guilty of pulling, pushing and elbowing. Of course, credit must be given to the finished players of the Furey outfit for slipping by some pretty tricks, which included blocking and up-to-the-minute footwork.

That the Celtics were extended to the utmost, not for a victory this time, but to keep in the running, was evidenced from the start of the game to the finish. Both teams played brilliant games, the locals showing themselves a little better than their valiant opponents. In the first half, the Morgenweckers outscored the Irish, 18 to 10. In the second period the scoring was even, the final score being 30 to 22.

Carl Husta captured the shooting laurels for the evening in this titanic match, gleaming a total of 12 points. Three doublets and six singles was his contribution toward the victory. Johnny Beckman, the highest paid basketball player in the game, took second honors with 10 points, two from the floor and six from the correction line.

The work of Harry Riconda, a forward on Morgenweck's Passaic Five, was very noticeable, while he was in the game. Riconda besides playing a swift floor game, made seven out of eight fouls.

During the initial period Kingston's points were made on ten out of thirteen tries from the chalk line, which is a good record in any game, and four field goals. The Celtics, noted for their crack shooting, didn't make out so good, getting but eight out of seventeen attempts from the fifteen foot line and sinking but one from the playground.

In the second half Kingston's points were totaled as follows: Eight singles and two doubles. A big amount was caged by the losers but, differently, three fields and six fouls. In this period the local outfit made good their fouls out of ten chances. Kingston was corrected nine times.

The Opening Session. The machine like squad of the Shamrock team met with a severe jolt at the very outset of the game, when Carl Husta and Riconda tripped merrily over the court and to stop them was necessary to foul them. This they did, which resulted in the locals taking the lead. Husta scored the first point. The defensive play, with Artus in the fore, was a real treat. One field basket during a period for the Celtics speaks volumes for the playing of the Kingston team. It was said by many that the locals would run themselves out of the game in the opener, which proves not so.

C. Husta played the important role in this half getting three pretty baskets from the floor. Dehnert had a mighty hard time in trying to keep in check the speedy forward and before the evening was to close, knew that he put in a night's work. M. Husta, also in front, had something to say in keeping the champions busy. Although Mickey didn't pull out with a big score, his floor work counted greatly. Barry opposed Mickey.

At the center position Powers played Leonard and he got at least an even break, as was seen in the plays completed from the tap off. All during these proceedings, Referee Murray had a busy time, as all he called for the opening session thirty fouls, which left little time for basketball. Murray was not altogether wrong in cutting the fouls.

Second Period. The same lineup took the court for the last round. The locals were sitting pretty with eight points, especially when they realized they would have to add more to come out a winner, and played accordingly. In this period the Celtics outscored the locals from the field, 3 to 2. But the Morgenweckers evened up with getting the edge on foul tossing. Eighteen fouls were called during this period, when more basketball was enjoyed. In staving off the frantic efforts of the fighting Irish, the Morgenweckers again proved their mettle. Soup Campbell, another member of the Passaic Metropolitan League five, replaced Riconda for a time in this session. Barry was replaced by Burke.

The closest the Celtics came to the locals after the going was rough was four points in the rear, and this was not for long. Beckman tossed his two baskets from long range in this period, which proved that Johnny is still in the struggle. This fact also refects some credit on the shrewd Morgenweck, having his charges abandon the long shots, as he knew the famous quintet had a big edge from this standpoint.

The passing of the visitors, which is hard at all times to excel was matched by the pretty cutting of the locals, which among other things wins basketball games. While Campbell was in the struggle his work was of the highest order, which is no surprise to local fans. A pretty field, a foul and taking the ball away from the huskies on the opposition marked his stay. All told the game was one of the hardest fought on a local court. That the Celtics will seek further games with the Kingston team can be depended upon.

The score:

Hi-Y Club Hears "Y" Secretary

The regular meeting of the Hi-Y Club was held at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening. There was no speaker scheduled for the evening. However, Safford and Tetley, representatives of the Kingston Club at the annual Hi-Y convention held at the good time, including the trip to and from the convention. Safford followed with a report of the aims and accomplishments of this convention. President Whistler then introduced Billy Burger, the New York State Y. M. C. A. Secretary. In his talk Mr. Burger said, "That the Hi-Y movement is the greatest movement in North America." Just before the meeting adjourned Captain Goldberg took the opportunity of thanking the Hi-Y Club on behalf of the varsity football team for the splendid way they are entertaining the visiting teams.

Chicago Lacks Scoring Punch

Stagg Realizes Running Attack Is Only Small Part of Necessary Tactics, That Win Games—Shifting Squad in Preparation for Illinois Contest.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)
Chicago, Oct. 30.—You can take the other fellow's watch, wallet, and what not with an unloaded gun, provided he isn't aware of the innocuous condition of the weapon in question. But the entire big ten conference knows that the University of Chicago has neither passers, who can pass nor punters who can punt and is conducting itself accordingly.

"Nowadays," said Alonzo Stagg, the old man of collegiate football as he yawned behind a weary hand, "you can't get along with merely a running attack. You must have at least the threat of something else."

That is one of the old man's problems. The other is more or less of a community affair. It has to do with the possible business of stopping Harold "Red" Grange, of Illinois, probably the greatest ball runner the western conference has known since the days of Willie Newton.

Stagg, like many another big ten coach, has a worthy line and good ends. He knows that the latter are not quite to the matter of annoying Grange to any extent and is casting about for a special defense that will cope with Grange's speed and at the same time handle the Illinois passing game, alleged to be the best in this section.

Promptly at 5:30 every day, Stagg clears his field of every one not wearing a football suit and goes into executive session with his problem. Just what his solution, if any, might be, is something that only time and a week from next Saturday will divulge. Meantime, of course, he is not overlooking the fact that the Maroons have a football game with Purdue on Saturday.

"That's our trouble," said he. "We are not really concerned with the outcome of any game outside the conference and the season is just one conference game after another. The east has nothing like that."

Stagg makes no attempt to evade the fact that his present outfit is not a typical Chicago team. It has all kinds of power between the two twenty yard lines, but when the defense creeps up under its guns, power alone will not do. In the emergency he is trying to develop a scoring medium with two drop kickers, Caruso and Curley, the latter having tied Ohio State with a field goal last Saturday.

Caruso kicks them from all angles in practice and from no angle whatever during a game. Curley would seem to be more consistent.

The rest of the backfield punch is supplied by Harry Thomas and McCarty, line plungers. McCarty is quite a line cracker but they have to get him right out of there when the other team has the ball. Thomas is a good man in the open field, once he breaks off tackle. Kernwein, slightly injured at the moment is a regular back. So is McKinney, a sprinter; Clarke, leading punter among few, if any, Rouse, Francis, Law, Gordon and Marks. There is little to choose among those mentioned.

Abbott, ex-tackle, ex-guard and ex-end, is Stagg's quarterback, it being figured that a heavy man is needed for the interference. His understudy is he of the gifted toe, Bob Curley. Robert also is something of a punter.

The ends, Barnes and Barto, are so indifferent on defense that Stagg is juggling with the idea of swinging Law from fullback to one of the wings, probably Barto's.

Henderson, active, intelligent, is the best forward in the squad. He plays one of the tackles. The other is taken care of by Gowdy, weighty and consistent; the guards are Pondelik, Pokrass and Rolleston, the latter having been injured in the Missouri game.

At center Goodman appears only on defense. Gowdy shifting over to pass the ball on attack. Emerick, another good man, lost the Missouri game by poor passing and now is in very bad repute.

Most of the men mentioned are veterans, the list including Barnes, Barto, Law, Gowdy, Henderson, Hibben, Pondelik, Rolleston, Abbott Thomas and McCarty.
